TL;DR

The blog post reflects on a recent trade involving Tesla, where the author exited at a 5 out of 10 due to fears of a downturn, despite achieving a 397.14% gain overall. The author expresses a desire for a better entry point and discusses strategies for future investments, including monitoring Ethereum for potential opportunities.

Had a poor exit on Tesla, on a scale from 1-10, I would say a 5. Has peaked at 664 exited at 626 in fear of a major fall. A little more patience could have conquered, seeing as it was a fake-out of breaking the trend line and continuing to the downside. I was frustrated on this particular day.

Overall closing this position with 397.14% gains. Overall this was a successful trade, with the 1-5 stock-split @446 per share, we purchased 1 share @$630 making our avg cost $126. Looking forward to another opportunity for entry or an IPO opportunity where I can invest in more volume and see a greater return at a faster pace.

I love Tesla and would love to see it come back down for an OTE and grab 5-10 more up and expect another stock-split in the future. Still super proud of this trade, on to the next one. I Will make sure I focus on taking advantage of the next opportunity and not harper on this trade, set up alerts for an OTE, and strive forward, so I can continue to progress with consistent profitability.

Diligently seeking an OTE for ETH, a major retest before going to 1100 and into the new year, thats what I see. However, it came down to 555 sometime around 2-4am and not sure if that was the retest. Yet, its continuing to form lower highs and lower lows on the daily and remaining below the trend line on the daily range which goes down to 335 on a high range, which is near the 50% fib rib.

Being observant and have alerts in place to make me aware of entry points.
