I had a nice trade where I scalped a long on MES because of how strong vold add and RTY YM were. I am unsure if this was actually a good trade or if it was a bad one considering the fact that the RTY and YM were fully inverse of the ES and NQ. That means rotation which meant that I needed to take my profits quickly and that is exactly what I did. I waited for a clean bounce up into the 10:00 window and then sold before 10 hit knowing that we get a new market at that time anyway. Considering the factors I think I did the right thing today but also may have been better long term to not trade at all when there is this much rotation. using very small size is what made this trade and this day a + of a day. but also trading at all made this a - day
