

September 30th, 2022 (-$69)

By disciplined_daytrader · September 30, 2022

TL;DR

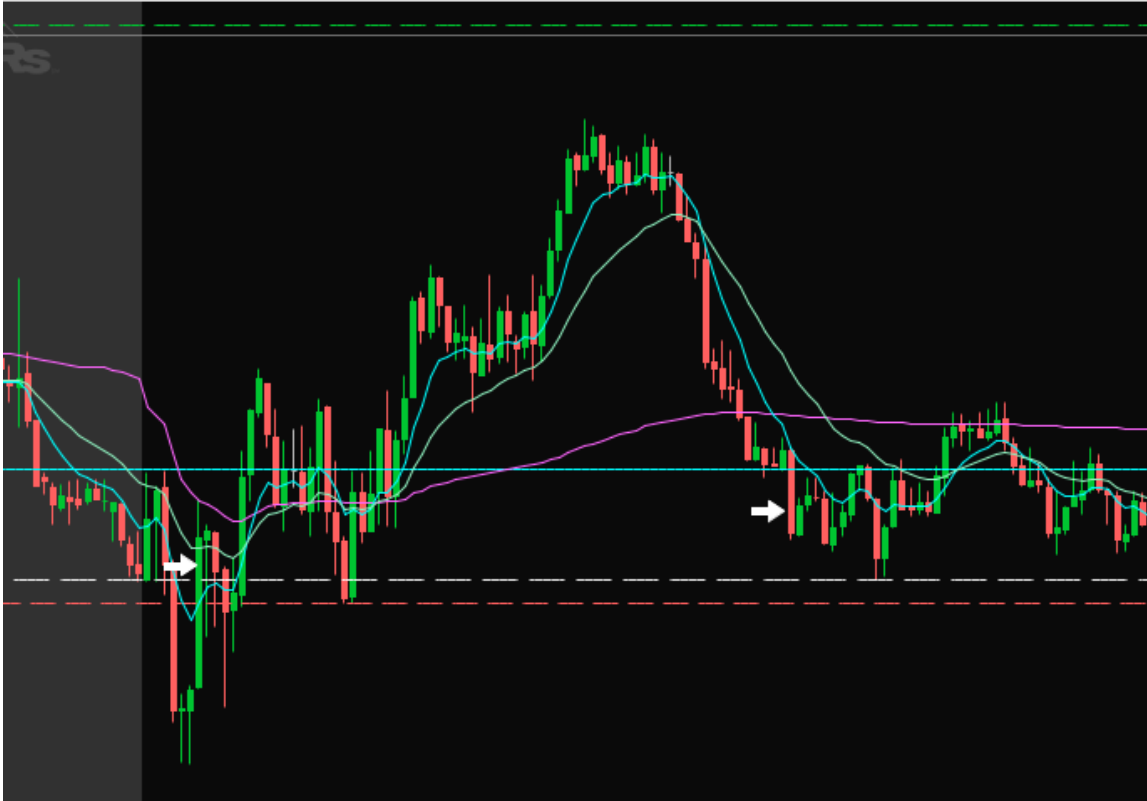

On September 30th, 2022, the author expresses frustration with trading, contemplating liquidating their account for more profitable ventures. The post outlines several trades, including demand zones and trend continuations, but ultimately conveys a strong dislike for trading overall.

September 30th, 2022

-This is one of those days where I truly despise trading more than anything else. The moment the market closed all I am thinking is "How do I liquidate my account and spend that on something that actually makes sense and makes me money." Ill only say this one time in this post but FUCK TRADING.

1st Trade: Demand Zone

2nd Trade: Trend Continuation

3rd Trade: Trend Reversal

4th Trade: Trend Reversal

5th Trade: Trend Continuation FUCK TRADING

FAQ

What happened on September 30th, 2022?

The author experienced significant frustration with trading and considered liquidating their account.

What types of trades were mentioned?

The author mentioned trades involving demand zones, trend continuations, and trend reversals.

Why does the author dislike trading?

The author feels that trading is unprofitable and expresses a desire to invest in more sensible ventures.

How many trades did the author outline?

The author outlined five trades in the post.

What is the overall tone of the blog post?

The tone is highly frustrated and disillusioned with the trading experience.